Julian Cano

Julian is an associate at LeGros Buchanan & Paul. Julian has experience in personal injury, medical malpractice, contract, and employment law litigation. Prior to joining the Firm, Julian worked at a local Washington law firm engaged in a varied civil litigation practice involving both plaintiff and defense work. Julian has successfully represented clients at both mediation and trial. After graduating from law school, Julian served as a law clerk for the Eighteenth Judicial District Court in Colorado. He also worked as a Deputy District Attorney with the Denver District Attorney's Office where he prosecuted criminal cases.

Julian is a Florida native and received his Bachelor of Arts in Creative Writing from Florida State University (2014). He graduated from Rutgers Law School - Newark, New Jersey with a specialization in Corporate and Business Law (2019). Julian was an Executive Editor of the Rutgers University Law Review and was also a member of the Rutgers Moot Court Board National Appellate Advocacy Team. Julian also worked as a Clinic Law Student at Rutgers Law School's Community and Transactional Lawyering Clinic where he provided corporate, transactional, and state and federal tax legal services to for-profit businesses and non-profit organizations. During law school, Julian also served as a judicial intern for the Honorable Michael Shipp of the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey, and as a student honors legal intern at the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission with the Division of Enforcement.

Julian is admitted to practice in Washington and Colorado (inactive).
